PROGRAMMERS MIKAELA SMITH, JADE TURNER AND BECKY PADLEY REVEAL THEIR FESTIVAL PICKS

ALL WE IMAGINE AS LIGHT p11

5-star reviewed everywhere, the lives of three hospital workers in frenetic Mumbai intertwine in Payal Kapadia's delicate ode to female friendship.

THE BRUTALIST p13

Adrien Brody picks up and runs with this fictional story of a Hungarian architectural genius that's big in every sense.

HAPPYEND p21

Techno music obsessed teens find imaginative ways to subvert the Big Brother system of a Japanese city in the near future.

I'M STILL HERE p25

Walter Salles (Central Station, The Motorcycle Diaries) returns with this agonising story of a family ripped apart by Brazil's 1970s military junta.

MOTHERBOARD p29

A frank and enthralling first-person film journal that encapsulates the ups and downs of single motherhood.

MURDERING THE DEVIL p30

Exquisite cooking is key in this newly restored Czech New Wave satire, a gem by forgotten filmmaker Ester Krumbachová.

FLOW p20

Totally without dialogue, fluid animation conjures up a cataclysmically flooded world denuded of humans but peopled by animal survivors.

FOUR MOTHERS p21

An Irish adaptation of popular Mid-August Lunch sees stressed queer novelist Edward coping with more feisty surrogate mothers than he can handle.

MEMOIR OF A SNAIL p28

Winner of the Best Film Award at London Film Festival, this offbeat animation about two twins separated in 70s Australia is a masterpiece.

MISERICORDIA p29

Jérémie returns to rural southwest France to disrupt the lives, sexual and otherwise, of its strange inhabitants in this earthy dark comedy.

NICKEL BOYS p33

Turning Colson Whitehead's novel about friendship and survival in a brutal boys' reform school thrillingly on its head, this is unmissable.

VERMIGLIO p52

The end of WWII overturns the unwavering pace of life, spilling secrets in a remote village in the Italian Alps.

WELCOME TO THE 23RD BORDERLINES FILM FESTIVAL!

Another year, another fabulous edition of Borderlines with a mouth-watering selection of the best world and independent cinema spread throughout the length and breadth of Herefordshire, Shropshire, Malvern and the Welsh Borders.

Immerse yourself in the full Festival feel over 16 days at our wonderful venues offering a wide range of viewing experiences, from multi-screen arts centres and refurbished classic cinemas to market town and village halls. As ever, we thank our partners, The Courtyard Hereford, Malvern Theatres, Ludlow Assembly Rooms,

Richard Booth's Bookshop Cinema in Hay-on-Wye, The Regal Tenbury Wells, Presteigne Screen and the distinctive Flicks in the Sticks/Arts Alive network of village hall and market town screens bringing world class cinema directly to their local rural communities.

None of this would be possible without the enthusiasm of our audiences and the continued support of our funders: the BFI awarding funds from the National Lottery, The Elmley Foundation, and Hereford City Council. Our dedicated sponsors, new and returning, are another important and vital element in the Festival and we ask you to support them where you can.

FESTIVAL OVERVIEW

WHAT

Borderlines Film Festival is the UK's largest rural film festival, with close to 300 screenings of the best new international and British cinema. You'll see a lot of films that are tricky to catch anywhere outside major cities, including rare or classic gems.

WHERE

Borderlines stretches over Herefordshire and Shropshire, down the border with Wales, with a foothold to the east at Great Malvern. Through its partner venues and the amazing network of village halls and community centres that is Flicks in the Sticks, it takes cinema out to widespread audiences and brings individuals together to enjoy great films at their best - on the big screen.

MUSIC

Live accompaniment to 1927 silent classic SUNRISE: A SONG OF TWO HUMANS is a festival highlight. Multi-instrumentalist Stephen Horne and harpist Elizabeth-Jane Baldry improvise the score to this magical film. Sensational Cuban rumbera star, Ninón Sevilla, is back in triplicate. In ADVENTRESS, TAKE ME IN YOUR ARMS and VICTIMS OF SIN, Ninón sings, dances, endures immeasurable hardships, but reigns supreme. Jazz from Dizzy Gillespie, Louis Armstrong, Nina Simone, Miriam Makeba and others punctuates the innovative documentary SOUNDTRACK TO A COUP D'ÉTAT.

COMEDY

Comedy comes in many forms from SISTER MIDNIGHT's punkish take on arranged marriage to the subtle absurdities of Isabelle Huppert's puzzling French ex-pat in A TRAVELER'S NEEDS. Huppert resurfaces in glitzy, screwball 1930s Paris in THE CRIME IS MINE, while Ian McKellen's bitchy turn in THE CRITIC is sharp as battery acid. Juan Salvador Pinguino is the perfect foil to Steve Coogan's sardonic wit in THE PENGUIN LESSONS and Carmen the pooch plays for laughs in THE SUMMER WITH CARMEN. Comic plot devices centre around rapidly devaluing Ostmarks in TWO TO ONE and cheese in HOLY COW.

RURAL

A wealth of rural films brims with contrasts. From local docs spotlighting Hereford's historic cattle market (CHEWING THE CUD) and apple traditions (WELCOME TO THE ORCHARD OF ENGLAND), move into seemingly idyllic corners of provincial France where toxic fungi thrive among the autumn leaves (MISERICORDIA, WHEN AUTUMN FALLS). Step into a bleak Irish farming community for powerful revenge thriller BRING THEM DOWN and penetrate the Italian Alps of VERMIGLIO where change happens slowly. Further afield, an Occupied West Bank village is the setting for horrific human rights violations in NO OTHER LAND, while extremism in the Tunisian mountains disrupts the serenity of childhood in RED PATH. Finally, feel the reality of climate migration and its effect on rural communities in Mongolia in THE WOLVES ALWAYS COME AT NIGHT.

TALK BY OSCAR-WINNING PRODUCTION DESIGNER JAMES PRICE

Saturday 6.30pm Ludlow Assembly Rooms, 1 hour
 £7/ students, U16 £4
 Followed by Poor Things screening at 7.45pm
 Combined talk & film price £15/ £8

James will talk about his career, focusing on his outstanding design collaboration with Shona Heath on Poor Things (Yorgos Lanthimos, 2023) for which he received an Academy Award and a BAFTA.

James grew up on a small family farm in North Herefordshire, attending Hereford College of Art and Design, followed by a master's degree in production design for TV and film. After working on TV dramas, he quickly established himself as a successful art director on projects such as Judy and Paddington 2.

In 2018, he designed his first feature film, The Nest, moving on to espionage series The Ipcress File. He also wrote and directed his own experimental films, with sections shot in rural Herefordshire. James screened his feature Shell Shock at Borderlines in 2010.

More recently, James has spent time in the US on the biographical wrestling film The Iron Claw (2023) and the psychological horror Speak No Evil (2024), set in countryside close to his home in Herefordshire.

ADVENTURERA (AVENTURERA) (15)

DIRECTOR: Alberto Gout

STARRING: Ninón Sevilla, Tito Junco, Andrea Palma, Rubén Rojo

MEXICO, 1950, 1 HOUR 41 MINUTES, SPANISH + ENGLISH SUBTITLES

MUSIC

Sunday 9 March 7.30pm Malvern Theatres
Thursday 13 2.00pm Hereford, The Courtyard

Ninón Sevilla stars as Elena, an upper middle-class young woman whose life is sensationally turned upside down.

A victim of circumstances, Elena descends into a nightlife of extravagant dances, forced exploitation and prostitution under control of the brothel madam. The drama includes surrealist shows, lies, betrayal and offers a critique of the dynamics of social class, power and double morality. Aventurera was director Alberto Gout's fourteenth feature film, commissioned by production company Cinematográfica Calderón as a vehicle to bring Sevilla to super-stardom. Music plays an instrumental role in the narrative with Pedro Vargas singing the Aventurera song written by popular Agustín Lara.

ALL WE IMAGINE AS LIGHT (15)

DIRECTOR: Payal Kapadia

STARRING: Kani Kusruti, Divya Prabha, Chhaya Kadam

FRANCE/INDIA/NETHERLANDS/LUXEMBOURG, 2024, 1 HOUR 58 MINUTES, MALAYALAM/ HINDI + ENGLISH SUBTITLES

Wednesday 5 March 7.30pm Leintwardine Community Centre & Ross on Wye, The Phoenix Theatre
Thursday 13 7.30pm Pudleston Village Hall
Friday 14 7.30pm Ledbury, The Market Theatre
Friday 7 8.00pm Presteigne Screen

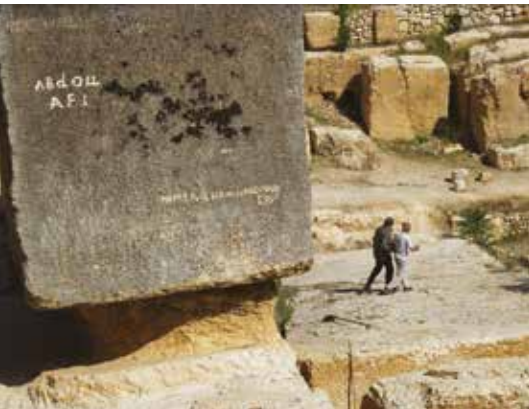

A transcendent picture of love and sisterhood, director Payal Kapadia's sublime second feature follows three women hospital employees navigating city life.

The stories, challenges and joys of hard-working nurse Prabha, whose husband moved abroad after their arranged marriage, her roommate Anu, involved in a clandestine relationship, and widow Parvati, facing pressure to leave her home, intertwine in this soulful, melancholic film. Balancing an immersive realistic style with a touch of the surreal, it explores the unspoken layers of yearning that weave through working-class life in a glittering nocturnal Mumbai.

ARCHITECTON (U)

DIRECTOR: Victor Kossakovsky

FRANCE/GERMANY/USA, 2024, 1 HOUR 38 MINUTES, ENGLISH/ITALIAN + ENGLISH SUBTITLES

Tuesday 11 March 11.00am, Thursday 13 1.15pm
Malvern Theatres

Wednesday 12 3.00pm Hereford, The Courtyard

The latest film from master documentarian Victor Kossakovsky (Gunda, Aquarela) is an epic, intimate, and poetic meditation on architecture.

Monumental in scale and vision and largely without narration, it's an absorbing journey that takes us from tomb-like Ukrainian cities through mind-boggling modern quarrying and construction methods to an ancient stone monolith in Lebanon. With architect Michele De Lucchi as our occasional guide, it manages to ask searching questions about our short-sighted use of natural resources: how do we build, and how can we build better – before it's too late?

"Blatantly dazzling, epic-scale filmmaking"
Guy Lodge, Variety

BRING THEM DOWN (15)

DIRECTOR: Christopher Andrews

STARRING: Christopher Abbott, Barry Keoghan, Colm Meaney

IRELAND/UK/BELGIUM, 2024, 1 HOUR 45 MINUTES, ENGLISH/IRISH + ENGLISH SUBTITLES

AD

Saturday 1 March 10.45am, Sunday 2 1.15pm,
Monday 3 7.30pm Malvern Theatres

Friday 7 4.45pm, Monday 10 2.00pm
Hereford, The Courtyard

Wednesday 12 7.00pm Ludlow Assembly Rooms

Barry Keoghan (Saltburn, The Banshees of Inisherin) and Christopher Abbott (Poor Things) give terrific performances in this blood-soaked drama.

The remaining son of a shepherding family, Michael (Abbott) lives with his ailing father Ray. When a simmering conflict with rival farmer Gary and his son Jack (Keoghan) escalates, powered by past feuds, a devastating chain of events puts both families on a collision course. Set in a rural Ireland every bit as harsh and unyielding as the Old West, this is a brutal vision of toxic masculinity, a taut, twisting thriller and a mournful lament about people unable to reach beyond themselves to break a generations-old cycle of harm.

Please note: this film includes a brief scene with a depiction of animal cruelty

Adrien Brody plays visionary architect László Toth, one of many immigrants from post-war Europe to the US.

Forced apart from his wife Erzsébet by the turmoil of war, László sets out to rebuild his life. On his own in a strange new country, he settles in Pennsylvania, where the wealthy and industrialist Harrison Lee Van Buren recognises his talent. But power and legacy come at a heavy cost...

A monumental drama, it's an electrifying study of 20th century immigration and the experience of Jewishness. This is a big story: from Brody's virtuoso performance, with a brilliant supporting cast, to the superb visuals, shot on 70mm film.

Please note: this film has a built-in 15-minute intermission

A decade on from its sell-out screenings at Borderlines, when it won the Audience Award for top film, here is another chance to see this entertaining and warm-hearted film.

Portraying the showmanship and characters that gave the cattle market its vibrancy, it's packed with archive footage and photographs. Enjoy anecdotes galore with tales of romance, traders juggling china, Miners' Fortnight, royal visits, Tom Jones and runaway animals as well as brand new footage that revisits some of the original characters ten years on.

Tensions simmer in a busy Times Square restaurant where back-of-house staff chase the American dream.

Here, in fine-grained black and white, is the pressure cooker of the modern professional kitchen, shifting away from haute cuisine to the phenomenally tough lives of the immigrant workers who keep the line running. Newcomer Estela pitches up seeking work on a day when money goes missing, with swaggerer Pedro the prime suspect. Meanwhile, hostess Julia grapples with her own commitments. Derived from Arnold Wesker's play, The Kitchen, but informed by Ruizpalacios' own experiences, this microcosm of contemporary capitalism teeters on the edge of total chaos.

The pope is dead. The throne is vacant.

Oscar-winning director Edward Berger's (All Quiet on the Western Front) sensational adaptation of Robert Harris's bestselling thriller has at its heart one of the world's most mysterious and ritualistic events – the election of a new pope. Following the sudden death of a beloved Pope, it falls to Cardinal Lawrence (Fiennes) to oversee the confidential, time-honoured process. But once the world's most powerful Catholic leaders have gathered and are sequestered in the Vatican halls, Lawrence finds himself at the centre of a conspiracy, with an incendiary secret that could shake the very foundation of the Church.

"A papal thriller that treads on eggshells, Conclave is one of the year's most deftly balanced films."

Ian McKellen and Gemma Arterton headline a scintillating thriller of theatre world ambition and deceit.

1936, London: Fascism is on the rise. Known for his merciless takedowns of actors like Nina (Arterton), acerbic critic and gay man Jimmy (McKellen) faces being fired by his editor David for both his extravagant prose and his personal life. As the Blackshirts take to the streets and anti-queer police raids begin, Jimmy uses Nina and David's desires to concoct a plot to save himself. Brimming with intrigue, scripted by Patrick Marber (Notes on a Scandal) and directed by Anand Tucker (Hilary and Jackie), this is a suspenseful tale about adversaries taking desperate measures.

Joshua Oppenheimer follows documentaries The Act of Killing and The Look of Silence with a bold move: an all-star musical about a family that has survived the end of the world.

Twenty-five years after environmental collapse left the Earth uninhabitable, Mother, Father and Son and their few companions are confined to a palatial bunker. They struggle to maintain hope and a sense of normalcy through the rituals of daily life – until the arrival of a stranger. Suddenly the frail bonds of optimism that have held this wealthy clan together begin to fray. As tensions rise, long-repressed feelings of remorse and resentment threaten to destroy the balance. But difficult truths point to a way forward, one based on acceptance, love, and a capacity for change.

Photographer Ernest Cole's groundbreaking work that exposed the inhumanity and injustice of South African apartheid to the world is brought to life by documentary maker Raoul Peck.

Published in 1967 when Cole was only in his 20s, his book House of Bondage is filled with images of the acutely painful photographs Cole risked his own life to take: psychological portraits of existence within a brutal caste system, its violence and indignity. Exiled to Europe and America, he spent the rest of his life disillusioned and enraged by the silence of the West in the face of the apartheid regime. Of a piece with Peck's body of work (including I Am Not Your Negro), this also functions as detective thriller that reassesses Cole's life and his contribution to our understanding of race.

Adapted from Elizabeth Fremantle's novel The Queen's Gambit, Karim Aïnouz's (The Invisible Life of Eurídice Gusmão) lavish historical drama features a scene-stealing performance from Law.

In a blood-soaked island kingdom, accomplished Katherine Parr (Vikander) becomes the sixth wife of King Henry VIII (Law) at great personal risk – all her predecessors are vanquished or dead – and when Henry leaves her to rule during his absence overseas, he lays out a dangerous path for her. Suspected of sympathy to radical Protestants, Katherine comes under increasing scrutiny from Henry on his return and must unleash her own scheme for survival.

"Incendiary... Jude Law is scarily good... A vividly constructed drama, expertly played"

In the face of a devastating flood, the solitary Cat embarks on a bold adventure that pushes both humans and dialogue out of the frame.

In a mysterious, unearthly environment, rendered in a distinctive 3D animation style, Cat forges bonds with other creatures, all imbued with a rare specificity of character, despite never uttering a word. As with last year's Robot Dreams, the power of animation to tell universal, emotionally piercing stories about our connections with others is unparalleled. It's a treat not only for cat lovers (who will find themselves utterly charmed), but for anyone who loves to be dazzled by the incredible scope of animation.

A loose adaptation of Gianni Di Gregorio's Mid-August Lunch (2008) turns out a touching, often funny and intimate tribute to middle-aged Irish gay men and their working class matriarchs.

James McArdle plays Edward, a queer up-and-coming novelist under pressure to embark on a US book tour while caring for his elderly mother. His problems are compounded when his three best friends head off to Spain on an impromptu Pride holiday – and leave their own ageing mothers under Edward's wing. The challenge for the placid Edward is to meet the demands of four eccentric, combative, and wildly different ladies over the course of one chaotic weekend while keeping his career afloat.

In a futuristic Tokyo shaken by earthquake alerts, a group of high-spirited teenagers defy the surveillance systems of their authoritarian school.

This feature debut from Neo Sora follows his documentary tribute to his composer father Ryuichi Sakamoto – and techno music is a passion that the young rebels share. Best friends Yuta and Kou aspire to be DJs but with different cultural and socio-economic backgrounds, their outlook and paths gradually diverge. This beautifully crafted vision of a dystopian and xenophobic city – not so far-fetched – urges us to imagine the possibilities of the future and consider them right now.

Mike Leigh returns with a fierce, compassionate and darkly funny character study.

Angry, depressed and wracked by fear, Pansy (BAFTA-winner Jean-Baptiste) lashes out at family and strangers alike. She simply cannot help herself. Her constant criticism isolates her from others save her warm, easy-going sister Chantal who remains sympathetic despite their clashing temperaments. Inverting the optimism of Leigh's Happy-Go-Lucky, this rich and expansive film from a master dramatist explores family, sisterhood and the enduring mysteries of character.

Shot in Argyllshire, Jim Crace's novel about a closed rural community in an unspecified past undergoes imaginative realisation by Greek film maker Athena Rachel Tsangari.

Tsangari, who has previously worked alongside Yorgos Lanthimos, follows her incisive portrait of male anxiety, Chevalier (2015), with a bold, vivid and good-looking take on the period film. In the wake of a mysterious stable fire, three incomers are blamed and persecuted, but the biggest threats arrive separately. Modern ideas about enclosure unsettle the communal notions laid out by landowner Master Kent. Outcast Thirsk (Caleb Landry-Jones) acts as go-between between the factions in this soon-to-bubble-over melting pot.

HOW TO MAKE MILLIONS BEFORE GRANDMA DIES (12A)

A box office sensation in Thailand, Boonnitipat's irresistible feature debut is a proven tearjerker.

After his grandmother Amah is diagnosed with terminal cancer, the lackadaisical M moves in to care for her. His newfound devotion isn't altruistic; he hopes to secure her multi-million-dollar fortune. Unfortunately, it turns out harder to win his shrewd grandmother's favour than he thought... And others have the same idea. Excellent lead performances and the realistic details, physical and emotional, of end-of-life care make a potentially sentimental premise much grittier. With a universally recognisable family dynamic, this is a journey to redemption with wit and heart.

Accomplished storytelling from Walter Salles (Central Station, The Motorcycle Diaries) in this stirring, visually rich account of 1970s family life during Brazil's military junta.

The large, lively Paiva family live an outwardly relaxed and privileged life at their beachside home in Rio de Janeiro. Suddenly one day, the father Rubens, engineer and former dissident politician, is taken away for questioning by the police and never reappears. Eunice (renowned Brazilian actor Fernanda Torres) must hold the family together and fight against the odds for justice. Salles' adaptation of Marcelo Rubens Paiva's 2015 memoir is an intensely intimate portrait of resistance, piecing together a vital part of Brazil's hidden history.

Far from a bleak story of suffering and discrimination, this film explores the world of India's 'third gender' (Hijra) in a positive way, full of laughter, drama, excitement, and pathos.

An emotionally charged seven-year journey follows the extraordinary story of Rudrani Chettri and her friends from baby blessings, red light districts and dazzling Hindu festivals to the glamorous world of photoshoots, designers, hair and make-up, lights and electrifying action. As traditional Hindu values clash with modern human rights, we discover the transgender trans - Hijra community of Delhi as they set about creating India's first ever trans modelling agency and an extravagant, paradigm-shifting, catwalk event.

A taut and controlled study of power, abuse and repression is set in an elite tennis academy.

Julie, superbly played by newcomer and teen tennis player Tessa Van den Broeck, excels in her sport of choice. She's a star student, heading for a professional career. When her coach Jérémy is suspended, suspicions of inappropriate conduct link him to the suicide of a former top pupil. As investigations into further possible abuse are pursued, Julie is encouraged to speak up. She remains silent, fixed on her game. This quietly potent drama speaks volumes about the inner turmoil and outward repression of abuse and trauma.

"...a tense, absorbing movie of silences and absences, of difficult terrain skirted around, of subjects avoided."

Set in an unspecified mining area in Northern England, the novel follows Billy Casper, a young working-class boy troubled at home and at school, who finds and trains a kestrel whom he names 'Kes'. This is part of The Read, a series of outstanding performance readings of iconic British novels, produced by Herefordshire's own Rural Studios

"If I hadn't met Barry Hines' Billy Caspar from [this] extraordinarily beautiful and important novel... I would have cared much less about other people and I would not be an actor."

Pamela Anderson stars as a seasoned showgirl in the final days of a legendary Vegas floor show.

With routines and décor showing signs of age, Le Razzle Dazzle announces that it is about to close. Shelly, one of their most experienced dancers, has no back up. She needs to find work, reconnect with her estranged daughter, and make ends meet. Shelly relies on her friends: two younger dancers, Marianne and Jodie, and cocktail waitress and gambling addict, Annette (a wonderful turn from Jamie Lee Curtis). What lies ahead? Coppola offers up a mellowed Las Vegas captured on 16mm film and a tender portrait of a vulnerable, lively, ingenuous woman, a character traditionally relegated to a faceless chorus line.

"a generous and sweetly elegiac ode to a fast-disappearing Las Vegas."

Oscar-winning director Adam Elliot's distinctive stop-motion animation style is perfect for conveying the sweet paths of the outsider.

In 1970s Australia, closeknit twins Grace and Gilbert are separated to opposite end of the continent while still children. Grace moves in with an affluent 'swinger' couple, while Gilbert, whose ambition is to be a fire eater, is fostered by members of a cult. Grace's life changes when she meets a colourful, eccentric old lady called Pinky who has 'done it all' – from making love to John Denver to playing ping pong with Fidel Castro. Witty, inventive but intensely full of feeling – as well as snail-obsessed – this is an animation gem.

"He makes mainstream animation look a bit neurotypical."

Returning to a small town in southwestern France for the funeral of his former boss, Jérémie's stay with widow Martine becomes embroiled in a disappearance, homoerotic intrigue and threat, and a mushroom-foraging abbot.

Personable Jérémie finds himself back home in the country and the sexual possibilities in this strange, earthy place are seemingly endless: his antagonistic, prize-fighting pal Vincent, the still attractive, elegant Martine, grungy neighbour Walter, and a horny, mushroom-foraging abbot. Deceptively perhaps, Jérémie is not quite the passive, obliging young man that he seems in this offbeat, darkly and defiantly queer vision of French provincialism.

Finding herself single, pregnant, and broke at 38, BAFTA award-winning director Victoria Mapplebeck turned the camera on herself.

Recording hundreds of hours of footage through 20 years, she documents her own life and that of her son Jim, from the thumbs-up he gave her during her first scan, to his first day at college. Intimate and engagingly frank, she records moments of sheer joy: holidays, birthdays, Jim's love of singing and dancing as he grows into an articulate and funny individual. But there's adversity to navigate too: breast cancer, the pandemic, absent fathers, late teens and the pitfalls they bring. This celebration of messy lives and solo motherhood is proof that epic journeys can begin and end at home.

This visually stunning documentary about an Orthodox nun, filmed largely in black and white, gradually overturns our preconceptions.

We first encounter Vera in the hidden Belarusian monastery where she has sought refuge from her precarious past for twenty years. Her face, set off by her austere black garb, is strikingly ageless and timeless. She has an incredible affinity with horses. But we learn that she faces deep inner conflict. Now, she must confront her past and trust her instincts to find the liberation she desires. Embleton and Tomlinson's extraordinary documentary feature debut lends Vera the space to tell her story of redemption, as she embarks on a spiritual journey of self-realisation and acceptance.

Long forgotten, recently restored, Ester Krumbachová's directorial debut is an exuberant, biting feminist satire.

The Czech production and costume designer, artist and screenwriter offers viewers as delicious a feast for the senses as her protagonist prepares for her insatiable guest, Mr Bohouš Čert (čert is the Czech word for devil). While Krumbachová collaborated on Czechoslovak New Wave films such as Věra Chytilová's Daisies, here everything that fascinated her comes together. Elaborate props, costumes and sets help characterise two archetypal characters in a battle of the sexes. Weaving together motifs from fairy tales, legends and other folk narratives, the film plays with audience expectations, as well as gender stereotypes. It's a gas.

A 70-year-old widow takes a second shot at love in this radiant tragicomedy from Iran.

Mahin (Lily Farhadpour) has lived alone in Tehran since her husband died and her daughter left for Europe. One afternoon, a conversation with friends inspires her to break out of her solitary routine, and what begins as an unexpected encounter with cab driver Faramarz (Esmail Mehrabi) quickly evolves into an unforgettable evening. Maryam Moghaddam and Behdash Sanaeeha's delightful food-centred film is also a defiant artistic statement about the complexity and individuality of older women's lives.

A documentary equivalent of Captain Fantastic, a family seeks a wild free existence in the Norwegian wilderness.

Maria and Nik, a British man, have chosen to make an unconventional life for themselves and their four children off grid on a small, farm surrounded by fir forest. They grow their own food, home school the children, close together and close to nature... until a tragic turn of events shatters their isolation and compels them to adapt to the demands of modern society. Not the film that Silje Evensmo Jacobsen set out to make, the shift in subject-matter to fragile family dynamics is perhaps all the more interesting for that.

A superlative adaptation of Colson Whitehead's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel tells the story of Elwood, a black teen sent to the hellish Nickel Academy.

Elwood befriends fellow student Turner and together they find a way to squirrel hope against the odds. Documentary maker RaMell Ross launches into feature filmmaking with this audacious and profoundly moving tale of a mid-century reform school, based on a notorious real-life institution. He uses an entirely visual means to explore not only what happened, but also how it felt, finding a new language to speak about the long shadow of trauma, one that leaves cliché behind. Pushing the painful to the margins, just as its characters do, this is impressive filmmaking.

"How often do you watch something so original, it changes the way you think about image construction itself?"

A must-see, heart-wrenching testimony to the largest single act of forced transfer ever carried out in the rural occupied West Bank.

Basel Adra, a young Palestinian activist from Masafer Yatta, has been fighting his community's mass expulsion by the Israeli occupation since childhood. As soldiers gradually but methodically destroy the homes of families, he documents it on camera or his phone. He crosses paths with Yuval, an Israeli journalist who joins his struggle, and their complex bond, haunted by the extreme inequality between them, raises significant questions. Put together by a Palestinian Israeli collective of four young activists, during the darkest, most terrifying times in the region, this is an act of creative resistance to brutal apartheid.

Laura Carreira's impressive feature debut is a powerful and nuanced meditation on social isolation and alienation.

Working round the clock at a vast fulfilment centre in Edinburgh, warehouse picker Aurora (Portuguese screen star Joana Santos) is a slave to the algorithm. Trapped between the confines of her workplace and the solitude of her flat share, she is desperate to build a rich and meaningful life but enjoys only the slightest of exchanges with her co-workers and flatmates. Within a culture dominated by an anonymising gig economy and the wider social and technological forces that seem designed to keep us apart, On Falling explores the struggle to find real connection.

Saoirse Ronan is superb as a young woman grappling with addiction in Nora Fingscheidt's (System Crasher) adaptation of the bestselling memoir by Amy Liptrot.

Fresh out of rehab, Rona returns home to the wild, beautiful Orkney Islands as a volunteer with the RSPB. After over a decade in London where she both found and lost love, and where her life was derailed by alcoholism, Rona, now 30, attempts to reconcile with her traumatic past. Her path to recovery is visceral, surrounded by ferocious gales and a stormy sea, rather than sentimentalised. It's also delicate, a moving and complex portrait of a troubled mind seeking to heal.

Steve Coogan brings deadpan irony to this warm and witty comedy from the director of The Full Monty and Military Wives, based on a best-selling memoir.

Buenos Aires, 1976: Tom begins a teaching job at an elite English boarding school. But Argentina is fraught with political violence and the military coup d'état interrupts teaching. On a weekend trip, Tom encounters a penguin drenched in oil and rescues it against his better judgment. In doing so, he unlocks its undying loyalty and, sneaking the flightless bird back to Argentina, begins a singular friendship that sees the penguin become an unwitting agent of change for the whole school.

John Boorman's Hollywood debut reframes film noir for a new era of filmmaking.

Lee Marvin is Walker, a gangster shot point blank and left for dead on Alcatraz by his partner, who steals Walker's money – and his wife. Walker is bent on seeking revenge on the people who double crossed him, and as he scours the criminal underworld of LA for those to blame, nothing will get in his way. Shot in blinding Californian sunshine rather than night-time shadow and influenced stylistically by the French New Wave, this cool, minimalist thriller, driven by Lee Marvin's characteristic toughness, is one of the iconic films of the 1960s.

A young woman who has drowned herself in Victorian London is brought back to life as Bella Baxter by an unorthodox scientist.

In a fusion of Alasdair Gray's 1992 novel with Mary Shelley's Frankenstein, Bella (played with terrific energy and verve by Emma Stone) embarks on a wild, accelerated ride through time and space. While her language grows exponentially from toddler to adulthood, her comprehension lags a little behind. But, as she elopes to Lisbon, Alexandria, Paris with a deliciously hammy seducer, it's the naivety of her world view that is telling. The incredible Oscar-winning production design by Festival guest James Price and his colleague Shona Heath plays a huge part in bringing Bella's inner and outer worlds to life.

Production designer James Price will give a talk in Ludlow at 6.30pm. Combined talk/film ticket available £15/ £8.

In 1951, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company set out to produce a publicity film promoting its activities in Iran, hiring none other than Dylan Thomas to write it.

The documentary combines colonial archival photographs with the poet's lyrical, often acerbic reflections (voiced by actor Michael Sheen) on oil, modernisation and imperialism as he journeys through a country on the cusp of political upheaval.

Set in the isolation of the vast Tunisian mountains, this dreamlike journey probes the wounded psyche of a young shepherd.

When a group of jihadists set upon two young shepherds, killing one of them, Achraf, 13, is forced to bring the head of his cousin Nizar to the family as a macabre message. Based on a real murder during the 2015 Tunisian unrest, the story foregrounds Achraf's point of view, from his playful interaction with his cousin, through the gut-churning terror of the attack, to his mounting inner anxiety as he faces his family's grief and dilemma. With stunning cinematography, the film delves deep into the psychological impact of violence on children, portraying the stark reality of rural Tunisia while contrasting it with more introspective, ethereal moments.

A retelling of Odysseus' (Ralph Fiennes) return to Ithaca pivots on the hero's inner state of being.

Odysseus's homecoming from 20 years of war and adventure is far from peaceful. Haggard and drained, he's a shadow of his former wily self. His wife, Penelope (Juliette Binoche) is held prisoner by suitors vying to be king and his son faces death at their hands. To win back his family, his kingdom and his self-respect, Odysseus must rediscover his strength. No Cyclops or Sirens here, the performances of Fiennes and Binoche are key, enhanced by ravishing cinematography that renders the film simply gorgeous to look at.

In the rural badlands of north India, a young widow is drawn into the investigation of a murdered teenager that divides the local community.

Santosh, a liability in a society where casteism and misogyny are rife, has reluctantly inherited her late husband's post as a police constable. When a lower caste girl's body is discovered in a well, charismatic Inspector Geeta Sharma mentors Santosh through the case as she navigates dubious policing methods, ingrained corruption and caste oppression. Sandhya Suri's hard-hitting and accomplished thriller focuses on the complex moral dilemma facing this tentative, wide-eyed female cop.

Dissident director Rasoulof personalises dividing lines in Iranian society in a family drama.

Iman sees benefits for his family in his promotion to interrogator for the Islamic Revolutionary Court. His daughters, however, are suspicious of his increasing collaboration with the regime. Encouraged to wave through death sentences, he is warned not to confide in his wife (actor and anti-hijab protester Soheila Golestani). Iman's divided loyalties are exposed when his government-issued handgun goes missing and suspicion falls on the women at home. Combining an electrifying generational battle with real-life footage of Iran's contemporary protest movement gives the film a startling relevance. What follows involves supremely dramatic, edge-of-the-seat revelations.

Two chimney sweeps in monogamous, heterosexual marriages both end up in situations that challenge their views on sexuality and gender roles.

In conversation at work, the sweeps confide in each other about unusual experiences they've had. One talks about his sexual encounter with another man, without considering it either an expression of homosexuality or infidelity and discusses it with his wife afterwards. The other finds himself in nocturnal dreams where he is seen (by David Bowie) as a woman, stirring confusion and leading him to question how much his personality is shaped by the gaze of others. This warm, absorbing leap into the complexities of gender and sexuality – and male friendship – manages to be deep and light at the same time.

Caught in a very new, very awkward arranged marriage, acerbic Uma and soft-spoken Gopal arrive in Mumbai, their home a tiny shack with paper-thin walls. At first, Uma does her best to cope with the heat, her lack of domestic skills, her bumbling spouse and their nosy neighbours, but the nocturnal world of the city grabs hold of her. Compulsively, Uma succumbs to her most feral impulses. Boosted by Apte's gift for physical comedy, this is an audacious and idiosyncratic story about a woman simply repudiating patriarchal norms.

Drawing imaginative connections between US imperialism, post-war jazz and Pan-African decolonisation, soundtracked by jazz riffs and staccato beats, it's a bold, invigorating watch that feels like being immersed in a brilliant non-fiction book, dense with ideas and grappling with a complex and fascinating history that speaks to the current moment.

Devised by a group of five neurodiverse artists alongside filmmaker Steven Eastwood, The Stimming Pool invites you to see the world from a neurodiverse perspective.

From a B-Movie film club host to an office worker masking their autism, this experimental and at times fantastical documentary builds a cast of enigmatic characters in order to explore autistic experience in all of its diversity. Through the film's recurring patterns and Easter-egg-like details, we see the intricacies and difficulties of autistic perception brought to life. Driven by the motto 'Nothing About Us Without Us', The Stimming Pool centres neurodiverse voices in its innovative, unique and visceral approach.

This coming of age story from filmmaking duo Astrid Rondero and Fernanda Valadez offsets the violence we come to expect from films set in contemporary Mexico.

Son of a murdered sicario (hitman) in a Mexico blighted by drug cartels, Sujo grows up with his aunts and cousins in semi-hiding in the countryside. Moving to the city as a young man, Sujo meets a teacher, Susan, who provides him with care, protection and the motivation to escape his destiny, that relentless tug into a macho world where the cycle of violence is toxic. Delicate, precise framing enables us to view events through Sujo's eyes as he grows and it's these elegiac moments that stick.

In this sexy, sun-drenched comedy, best friends Demos and Nikitas are about to embark on the most meta movie adventure ever.

They're making a film about the summer that turned their lives upside down – you know, the one where Demos' boyfriend Panos dropped a bombshell ending their four-year relationship and somehow leaving Demos to parent their dog, Carmen. As our dynamic duo dives into writing their masterpiece, the story bounces between past and present. But beneath all the laughs and chaos, there's a joyous exploration of what it means to be a modern gay man – from dating dilemmas to the pressure of fitting into society's neat little boxes.

This lyrical masterpiece from the director of Nosferatu, a pinnacle of silent cinema, is a study of betrayal, love and reconciliation. With live multi-instrumental accompaniment from Stephen Horne and Elizabeth-Jane Baldry on harp

Seduced by a vamp from the city, an unsophisticated farmer in a country village plans to murder his wife. However, on their journey to reach town, the couple rediscover their love for each other in a dazzling jazz age sequence. With its dreamlike realism, fluid camera work and simple, intense images of unequalled beauty, this adds up to one of the most enchanting experiences in the history of cinema.

"Murnau's greatness lies in this realization – that it is possible to photograph the real world and yet invest it with a variety of poetic, imaginative, and subjective qualities."

Erotic torments and class conflicts come to a head in Julio Bracho's formally daring masterpiece, one of the most important Mexican melodramas of the decade.

1954's Llévame en tus Brazos follows a fisherman's daughter (Ninón Sevilla) through a nightmare of exploitation and misery. Bracho and esteemed cinematographer Gabriel Figueroa (Los Olvidados, The Night of the Iguana) bring exquisite atmospherics to each shot with carefully calibrated lighting and meticulous compositions. But the film equally belongs to Sevilla, whose unforgettable performance elevates this rapturous portrait of agitated desire into something far more complicated and ahead of its time.

Fleifel's first feature about two Palestinian refugees stranded in Athens is an intense thriller with high moral stakes.

Cousins Chatila and Reda dream of opening a café in Germany. For now, they're reduced to begging, borrowing and grifting their way through the city streets to raise money for fake passports. But when Reda loses their stash to his drug addiction, it barrels them towards a knife-edge scheme to make one big score and get out. Painting refugees as neither victims, martyrs nor saints, this modern neorealist tale that recalls Bicycle Thieves and Midnight Cowboy is a powerful exercise in wringing extreme tension from the most human of impulses: to live in safety, to bring comfort to ourselves and our families.

A deliciously mischievous comic turn from Isabelle Huppert as Iris who has set up as a French language teacher in Korea using her own rather baffling methods.

Iris has no backstory. We're introduced to her through a couple of her bizarre but relaxed teaching sessions in which, with complete self-assurance, she converses with her pupils (in English!). Punctured with small cultural incongruities, including Iris's partiality for makkeolli, a potent Korean milky rice wine, we pick up more detail but resolve nothing. This is South Korea's super-prolific director Hong Sangsoo's third collaboration with Huppert and perhaps the most delightful in its gentle, oblique humour that touches on language, poetry, exile and the art of communication.

Thirty years after a chance encounter, Maggie and Joel, aged 75 and 84, are still very much in love. But their relationship is complicated and prickly. Born in the tough Bronx, Joel Meyerowitz is a world-renowned photographer with major exhibitions and 40 books to his name. British-born Maggie Barrett is a talented but less recognised artist and writer. The unease between them is further strained when Maggie breaks her leg and Joel becomes her carer. In the shadow of mortality, with a long and dramatic life behind each of them Maggie and Joel attempt to find a shared inner peace while there is still time.

A heist comedy set in East Germany 1990, the final hot summer before reunification, hinges on the tiny six-day exchange window before the Ostmark becomes obsolete.

Free-spirited Maren (Sandra Hüller), her partner Robert and friend Volker happen upon millions of soon-to-be-worthless East German banknotes and take what they can carry. Shot among some surviving gems of socialist modern architecture and cast exclusively with actors from the former East Germany, the nub of the story rests on how the members of a close-knit socialist community react to the sudden untold wealth within their grasp. Solidarity confronts greed in a resolution that owes much to a Robin Hood dynamic.

Discrimination, body shaming and violence. This is ballet in 2025.

But a group of defiant dancers, survivors of industry abuse, want to form a radical, diverse company that opens its doors to others who have suffered abuse, and give these talented, traumatised survivors a chance to fight back, on stage. They find a run-down studio, and Chase Johnsey, a gender fluid dance insurgent, to direct them. But they have no money, no reputation, and Chase has never directed before. The dancers are brave, but young and deeply fragile. They must confront their traumas and find belief, if they are ever to take the stage again. It is a journey of pain, hope, and above all resistance – to fight for justice, change lives, and create groundbreaking, liberated ballet – one choreographed step at a time.

Unfolding against the stunning backdrop of the Italian Alps, Maura Delpero's award-winning period drama is a hauntingly beautiful tale of family life torn apart.

1944. In the remote mountain village of Vermiglio, the war is a distant but constant threat. The family routine of local teacher Cesare is disrupted by the arrival of refugee soldier Pietro who's drawn instantly to the eldest daughter Lucia. Shifts in the cyclical customs of a fading era occur only gradually in such a location but the close of war brings dramatic changes to this contained community. Filmed with painterly grace, there's something reminiscent of the great films of Italian neorealism, in this detailed and compassionate depiction of the world of a family.

VICTIMS OF SIN (Víctimas del Pecado) (15)

DIRECTOR: Emilio Fernández

STARRING: Ninón Sevilla, Tito Junco, Rodolfo Acosta, Rita Montaner

MUSIC

Sunday 2 March 5.15pm Hereford, The Courtyard
Friday 7 2.00pm Ludlow Assembly Rooms
Saturday 8 1.30pm Malvern Theatres

A sizzling, feverish film noir set in Mexico City's red-light district nightclubs, this explosive rumbera stars the sensationally versatile diva Ninón Sevilla, 'The Golden Venus'.

Violeta, a cabaret dancer at the Club Changoo retrieves a new-born baby boy thrown by a co-worker into a bin (located directly in front of the city's Monument to the Revolution). Against the odds, turning even to prostitution, Violeta raises the child as her own, all the while defending him from his father, the ruthless, zoot-suited gangster-pimp Rodolfo. For all the feisty maternal self-sacrifice, it's the showstopping dance numbers that are key, outrageously sublime. One of the most emblematic films directed by Emilio "El Indio" Fernández with cinematography by acclaimed Gabriel Figueroa, and music from mambo king Damaso Pérez Prado.

WANDA (15)

DIRECTOR: Barbara Loden

STARRING: Barbara Loden, Michael Higgins

US, 1970, 1 HOUR 43 MINUTES, ENGLISH

Wednesday 12 March 7.30pm Malvern Theatres
Saturday 15 8.00pm Hereford, The Courtyard

Barbara Loden's first and only feature film, one she wrote, directed and starred in, has nevertheless exerted a huge influence on filmmakers of all genders ever since.

Set in industrial Pennsylvania, it foregrounds a kind of character seldom seen on screen. Soft-spoken and somewhat detached, Wanda has left her husband and given up her kids. She's a loner, who drifts between rundown bars and motels, ripe for exploitation by unscrupulous men – including a bank robber who ropes her into his next job. Shot in an intensely intimate vérité style, this indie masterpiece has never been screened frequently enough. Wanda is a compassionate and wrenching portrait of a woman stranded on society's fringes.

WAR PAINT – WOMEN AT WAR (15)

DIRECTOR: Margy Kinmonth

UK PREMIERE

Friday 28 February 2.00pm Ludlow Assembly Rooms

Saturday 1 1.30pm Hereford, The Courtyard

Saturday 8 1.15pm Malvern Theatres

Following her immensely popular Eric Ravilious - Drawn to War feature documentary, Margy Kinmonth now shines a light on the trailblazing role of women war artists.

On the front lines around the world, championing the female perspective on conflict through art, the film asks: when it's life or death, what do women see that men don't? Traditionally a male domain, war art by women has been largely unrecognised. Until now... Culture breaks taboos, crosses borders – tells the truth to power. Artists featured in an entirely female cast of contributors include Dame Rachel Whiteread, Zhanna Kadyrova, Maggi Hambling, Assil Diab, Dame Laura Knight, Marcelle Hanselaar, Cornelia Parker, Maya Lin and Lee Miller.

Director Margy Kinmonth will introduce the film in Ludlow and Hereford with Q&As to follow

WELCOME TO THE ORCHARD OF ENGLAND (PG)

DIRECTOR: Louis Norris

UK, 2023, 42 MINUTES, ENGLISH

RURAL FREE

Friday 28 February 2.00pm Tenbury Wells, The Regal

Known historically as the Orchard of England, Herefordshire is apple country.

This film brings together a wide-ranging and eccentric cast of local people – farmers, Travellers, former apple-pickers, clergymen, wassailers, cider makers, fruit sellers – to explore the deep relationship between the people of this area and its historic crop. Part portrait of a fading way of life, part celebration of how a living culture continues to manifest itself, the film raises deep questions about human nature. Expect games, pies, dancing, petty crime, and varieties of apple beyond your most delirious dreams. Prepare to honour the apple.

Co-producers Hilary Lyon, Louis Norris and Jonathan Ben-Shaul will introduce the film with a Q&A to follow

Ever-inventive, French auteur Fran  ois Ozon (8 Women, Swimming Pool, Potiche, Frantz) returns with a twisty, bittersweet story about age, youth, the past and the art of breaking the rules.

In a picturesque Burgundy village, Michelle is enjoying what looks like blissful rural retirement close to her old friend Marie-Claude. But tensions with the younger generation – between Michelle and her own hostile daughter and the return of Marie-Claude's scoundrel of a son – cause ructions. A straightforward character portrait and tense drama with a thriller element turns into something else as secrets from the past make their way to the surface. Elegant, slippery storytelling, daring tonal shifts and a wonderful lead performance from Vincent make this a delightful offering.

After a devastating storm destroys their livelihood in rural Mongolia, a young couple make the painful decision to uproot their family and move to the city and a new way of life.

Davaa and Zaya (credited as co-writers) live with their children in a desert region tending their small flock of sheep and horses. However, the effects of climate change prove more devastating to their tenuous livelihood than any physical wolves. The move to Ulaanbaatar undermines a whole way of life and ushers in doubts and emotional turmoil. Blending documentary and fiction, with superb cinematography, this paints a deeply affecting portrait of Mongolian life, and the rupture caused by climate migration.
