PROGRAMMERS MIKAELA SMITH, ELLA MARSH AND HEATHER BRADSHAW REVEAL THEIR FESTIVAL PICKS

DJ AHMET p15

In a remote Yörük village in North Macedonia, 15-year-old Ahmet battles hidebound customs, herds sheep, finds refuge in music and falls in love.

LA GRAZIA p20

Final days in office bring past enigmas, present moral dilemmas, absurd pomp and soothing electro-pop to president De Santis (the wonderful Toni Servillo).

NO OTHER CHOICE p35

Redundant paper executive Man-soo takes the guillotine to potential competitors for a new job in this madcap satire on masculinity and consumerism.

RESURRECTION p44

Made to be watched on the big screen, virtuoso filmmaking from Chinese director Bi Gan creates a time-travelling ode to and celebration of cinema.

SOULEYMANE'S STORY p48

A young migrant waits for a crucial asylum interview in a fast-paced social drama with an emotional punch. "A breathtaking thriller" ☆☆☆☆☆ (Télérama)

TUNER p53

Comedy, romance and crime thriller fuse in this drama around a young piano tuner with ultra-sensitive hearing – with a priceless cameo from Dustin Hoffman.

HEN p22

Surviving numerous obstacles, a chicken comes of age in a decrepit Greek restaurant – and her life trajectory throws human deficiencies into sharp relief.

MY FATHER'S SHADOW p32

British Nigerian brothers Akinola and Wale Davies wrote this semi-autobiographical story about two small boys' perspective on political upheaval.

ROSE OF NEVADA p45

Rooted in Cornwall like both Bait and Enys Men, Mark Jenkin's new feature is tactile and rich with colour, a ghost story set at sea.

SEEDS p47

Shot over seven years, this stunning black and white documentary is a vivid and intimate chronicle of a black farming community in the US South.

THE VOICE OF HIND RAJAB p53

Real life heart-rendingly dramatised as Red Crescent call centre workers strive to get help to a small girl trapped in a car under attack in Gaza.

WILD FOXES p54

A boxing drama centred around French adolescent Camille throws questions about relentless physical training and ultra-masculinity into the ring.

WELCOME TO THE 24TH BORDERLINES FILM FESTIVAL!

Borderlines springs back into action with a wonderful selection of films from across the world spread throughout Herefordshire, Shropshire, Malvern and the Welsh Borders.

Don't miss your chance to indulge in our feast of cinema over 16 days at our fabulous venues from multi-screen arts centres to refurbished classic cinemas and market town and village hall venues. This year we welcome three new Shropshire venues: Maona in Oswestry and Flicks venues at Cleobury Mortimer and Bishops Castle.

As ever, we thank our partners The Courtyard Hereford, Malvern Theatres, Ludlow Assembly Rooms, Richard Booth's

Bookshop Cinema in Hay-on-Wye, Regal Tenbury Wells and the Flicks in the Sticks/Arts Alive network of village hall and market town venues providing unique experiences, bringing world class cinema directly to their local rural communities.

None of this would be possible without the enthusiasm of our audiences and the continued support of our funders: the BFI awarding funds from the National Lottery, The Elmley Foundation, and Hereford City Council. Our wonderful sponsors are another important and vital element in the Festival, and we ask you to support them where you can.

FESTIVAL OVERVIEW

WHAT

Borderlines Film Festival is the UK's largest rural film festival with close to 300 screenings of the best new international and British cinema. You'll see a lot of films that you'd find hard to catch anywhere outside major cities, including rare or classic gems.

WHERE

Borderlines stretches over Herefordshire and Shropshire, down the border with Wales, with a foothold to the east at Great Malvern. Through its partner venues and Arts Alive – which runs the amazing BFI funded programme Flicks in the Sticks – it carries cinema out to far-flung audiences, bringing individuals together to enjoy great films at their best: on the big screen.

Please note that where titles had not yet received a BBFC age rating, discretionary ratings have been put in place.

FESTIVAL PROGRAMME

WHAT ARE PREVIEWS?

Borderlines Film Festival brings you a bumper 30 titles screening before their official UK cinema release.

Some will open during or immediately after the festival; others won't be out till summer or autumn. We thank their distributors and our Independent Cinema Office programmers for enabling us to show them.

While reviews of these films are scant, trust us, these previews are choice and you'll be seeing them ahead of the curve.

Hen, Sound of Falling and Redoubt are pictured here, but look out for the P badge in the A-Z list of films for more.

For audiences with additional needs

AD

Audio Description – soundtrack with narration including descriptions of key visual elements via individual headsets. Available for AD films at The Courtyard Hereford and Malvern Theatres.

DS

Descriptive on-screen English subtitles – including descriptions of non-dialogue audio. These will assist Hard of Hearing/Deaf audiences.

RS

Relaxed screenings – with a less formal cinema environment: house lights on a low level, reduced volume, audiences are able to move around.

VENUES

Many of our venues are wheelchair accessible, but please check and book wheelchair space in advance with the venue to guarantee availability.

Carers and personal assistants can request free or reduced price entry at most venues.

Infra-red audio enhancements, used with or without a hearing aid, and hearing loops are available at most venues.

Tactile maps, braille and large print menus may be available at larger venues.

With such a wide-ranging number of venues, we strongly advise you to contact the cinema of your choice (p.62) to make sure that the access facilities you need are available.

This historical drama follows three generations of a Palestinian family, from 1948 in Jaffa to the near present.

Teenager Noor chases a friend through the streets of Nablus, only to be drawn into an intifada – with fateful consequences. Inspired by the real-life experiences of Palestinian American filmmaker Cherien Dabis, her own family, relatives and friends, the film powerfully explores the shared humanity of those forced to confront cycles of violence and the enduring trauma passed down through generations. Told with vivid detail, compassion and authenticity, the story is anchored by Dabis herself, who takes on the central role of the mother recounting her family's journey.

"...surprising, beautifully textured and deeply moving."

Adrian Horton, The Guardian

In 2075, 10-year-old Iris witnesses a mysterious boy in a rainbow suit fall from the sky: Arco.

A magical, beautifully animated journey through time, this is a dazzling, Ghibli-esque science fiction fantasy, produced and championed by Natalie Portman. A 10-year-old boy from an idyllic future accidentally travels back in time to a world in peril. As Arco and Iris develop a touching friendship, they band together – along with her trusted robot caretaker Mikki – on a quest to get Arco home, finding that they may also be the only ones who can save the planet. A wondrous odyssey filled with emotion and optimism for the future.

77-year-old Tereza escapes an ageist society to embark on a fantastical Amazonian journey that brings laughter and warmth in the face of adversity.

In near future Brazil, elderly citizens are scooped into remote enclaves where they will not be a burden to the state or their children. Having reached the fateful age, Tereza dreams of flying in a plane. Pursuing her ambition, she finds herself on an illegal journey through the Amazon. There she will find something even better than flight: independence. Political and unsentimental yet profoundly human, this is a memorable boat movie.

FRANCE, 1960, 1 HOUR 30 MINUTES, FRENCH + ENGLISH SUBTITLES

Thursday 12 March 1.30pm Ludlow Assembly Rooms
Sunday 15 11.00am Hereford, The Courtyard

Watch Jean-Luc Godard's ground-breaking first feature alongside Richard Linklater's playful making-of tribute, Nouvelle Vague.

Petty crook Michel Poiccard (Belmondo) steals a car, kills a cop and looks to hide out in the Paris apartment of his American girlfriend Patricia (Jean Seberg). Co-scripted on the hoof with Claude Chabrol and François Truffaut, the film embraces the tropes of American film noir while smashing the classic rules of filmmaking left right and centre. Godard's anti-hero – dark glasses, fedora, cigarette dangling from his mouth – is the epitome of the 1930s gangster, reckless and amoral but somehow ultra-modern too. Breathless made Belmondo into a star

A gripping, darkly funny and satirical environmental comedy-thriller from uncompromising director Lanthimos (The Favourite, Poor Things).

Teddy (Jesse Plemons), a beekeeper incensed by the dwindling honeybee population, immerses himself in conspiracy theories. Together with his cousin, he sets out to kidnap the high-powered CEO of a major company (a chillingly ruthless Emma Stone), convinced that she is an alien intent on destroying planet Earth. An inspired take on Jang Joon-hwan's 2003 South Korean satire Save the Green Planet!, events unfold with surprising, sometimes shocking results. Expect absurd, inventive, sometimes violent black comedy, some very strong language and a bold finale.

In this colourful crowd-pleaser that conflates the present with a vivid 19th century Paris, four distant cousins set out to trace their ancestors.

When a house in Normandy formerly belonging to an Adèle Meunier is due for demolition, her four descendants, businesswoman Céline, beekeeper Guy, French teacher Abdel and online content creator Seb, are summoned to inspect the contents. A trail of artefacts leads them to retrace Adèle's adventures in fin de siècle Paris. Playing fast and loose with accuracy, Colours of Time, with its excellent production design, mix of traditional and CGI special effects and deft interplay between past and present, is vastly entertaining.

Surveillance expert Harry Caul is convinced he has stumbled on a murder plot instigated by his corporate employers.

Sandwiched between The Godfather and The Godfather Part II, this 1974 film set in San Francisco was a personal project for Coppola, his plan being to portray a crime purely through the point of view of a peripheral character. Gene Hackman's restrained performance as seedy, withdrawn, sax-playing Harry runs against type. The making of this masterpiece coincided with the paranoia that accompanied the unravelling of Watergate and owes much to picture and sound editor Walter Murch, who won BAFTAs and was nominated for an Oscar for his work on the film.

Thompson's Barb channels the blunt good sense and resourcefulness of Marge Gunderson in Fargo.

A widowed fisherwoman, travelling alone through snowbound northern Minnesota on a very special ice fishing trip, interrupts the kidnapping of a teenage girl. Hours from the nearest town and with no phone service, she realises that she is the young girl's only hope. With gorgeous cinematography (the film was shot in Finland), Barb's quest is to find a way out of a desperate and deadly situation with only scant means and her initiative at her disposal.

Although Ángela has a strong support network of Deaf friends, the impending arrival brings up underlying concerns she faces with the hearing world (including Héctor and her family). Through the clever use of sound and silence, the film immerses the audience in Ángela's experience. Unable to know whether their child will be hearing or Deaf until after birth, the film is a beautiful and nuanced depiction of the couple's journey through pregnancy and childbirth.

US, 1972, 1 HOUR 50 MINUTES, ENGLISH

Monday 16 March 7.30pm Hereford, The Courtyard

Four Atlanta businessmen take a recreational trip down the Cahulawassee River in the northern Georgia wilderness – with dire consequences.

Alpha male and survivalist Lewis Medlock (Burt Reynolds) initiates a canoeing weekend to test the rapids before the river is dammed. Ed (Jon Voight) is an experienced sportsman, Bobby and Drew are not. The group provoke hostility from the locals; one interlude features the famous "Duelling Banjos" duet between Drew and an Appalachian boy. An armed attack by a pair of mountain men has horrific outcomes and in the panic that ensues, nature takes its toll. The film remains indisputably powerful; its aftershock will resonate well after you leave the cinema – not for the faint-hearted.

Sheep hit the dancefloor in this comic and radiantly colourful coming-of-age story about the unifying power of music.

A motherless 15-year-old in a remote North Macedonian village, Ahmet herds sheep and cares for his kid brother. Weighed down by his father's rules and hemmed in by his community's conservatism, he finds refuge in techno music, which brings him closer to Aya – but she's already promised... Uplifted by an extraordinary young cast and a rich soundtrack of regional as well as English language songs, DJ Ahmet dances fairytale-like along the line between modernity and tradition.

The eagerly awaited new film by Jim Jarmusch explores the intricacies of family dynamics.

This triptych deals with the relationship between adult children, their somewhat distant parent/s, and each other. In Father, two adult siblings spend an awkward afternoon with their reclusive father in rural northeast America. In Mother, a reunion in Dublin between a successful novelist and her two daughters unearths amusing revelations. Twin siblings meet in Paris to seek closure after the recent loss of their parents in Sister Brother. Funny, tender and astutely observed, Father Mother Sister Brother blends remarkable performances from its talented cast with Jarmusch's typically wry and idiosyncratic observations of everyday life.

Each year the sleepy highland village of Carrbridge awakens with excitement as competitors vie for the honour of winning The Golden Spurtle in the World Porridge Making Championships.

Dating back to neolithic times, few culinary traditions have survived as long as the hearty bowl of morning porridge. Despite its simple recipe of oats, salt and water there is a lot that can vary. Local traditionalists like Charlie and Ian try to preserve their legacy against formidable competition from outsiders like Australian chef Toby and challengers, Lisa and Adam. Against the backdrop of the breathtaking Scottish Highlands, this captivating documentary captures the humanity of village life with irrepressible humour.

This epic, silent-era documentary follows the heroic annual migration of the nomadic Bakhtiari tribes of Iran through spectacular landscapes.

Along with journalist Marguerite Harrison, Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack – the duo responsible for the early sound masterpiece King Kong (1933) – travelled through Turkey and territory that is now Iraq, searching for the nomads. Finding them in the prairies of southwest Iran, the filmmakers joined them for their spring migration through inhumanly arduous routes, crossing the wild Karun River on inflated goatskins and climbing the 4,200-metre Zard-Kuh with bare hands – sometimes even barefoot. The scenery is breathtaking, and the feat, to guide 50,000 people and half a million livestock across impossibly snowy and stony terrain, awe-inspiring.

Sorrentino (The Consequences of Love, The Great Beauty) reunites with actor Toni Servillo in this chamber-piece about the final months in office of an Italian president.

President Mariano De Santis – grieving his wife’s death – retreats into isolation within his vast presidential palace, relying on his trusted confidante and comforted by a predilection for hip-hop. Contemplating his past and the uncertain future, he confronts questions of power, love and legacy, as well as moral crises over euthanasia legislation and whether to ‘pardon’ eligible prisoners before he leaves office. Offbeat humour and a fascination for the intricacies of human nature combine in this intimate drama.

Bart and Laurie, both sharpshooters, meet in a fairground, fall in love and embark on a crime spree in this cult film noir.

A low-budget B-movie with a terrific script by an uncredited Dalton Trumbo (blacklisted, his services were cheap), Gun Crazy was shot in just 30 days and maintains an extraordinary pace. Key to its success is Irish actor Peggy Cummins, born in Prestatyn, Wales almost exactly a hundred years ago. Her pretty, vivacious and petite appearance makes for an unlikely ruthless killer. Her performance as Laurie Starr is nuanced, and her outfit, beret and dark glasses, is iconic, the model for Faye Dunaway in Bonnie and Clyde. A compulsive watch.

Claire Foy (Wolf Hall, The Crown) stars in the adaptation of Helen Macdonald's acclaimed memoir.

Cambridge academic Helen goes to pieces after losing her beloved father. To recover, she retreats and turns to nature. Adopting and training a northern goshawk, she enters a radically challenging but consoling dynamic with the stubborn, ferocious bird she names Mabel. Lowthorpe's arresting adaptation boasts magnificent footage of its feathered co-star and a career-best performance from Foy as she reflects on the wilds of grief and the tenacity and indifference of the natural world.

"F is for Face... Foy excels... conveying so much of the physical toll in her eyes and the tiniest facial flickers alone."

A hen's-eye view of the world reveals the cut-throat nature of existence and puts human flaws into relief in this tragicomic tale from György Pálfi (Huckle).

An animal protagonist – as with Jerzy Skolimowski's donkey in EO (shown at Borderlines in 2023) – can take you places where people cannot penetrate. This is a coming-of-age story – but of a chicken. Surviving battery farming, a fox, traffic, the dangers of a big city, a dog and being made into soup, the hen ends up taking refuge in a crumbling Greek seaside restaurant where a human tragedy is unfolding. A filmmaking tour-de-force with real animals in real locations and a brilliant score, this is something different.

Disowned at birth by his wealthy family, Becket Redfellow will stop at nothing to reclaim his inheritance, no matter how many relatives stand in his way.

Sound familiar? This black comedy is loosely based on Robert Hamer's 1949 Kind Hearts and Coronets in which Alec Guinness plays all eight of the hero's aristocratic relatives. Estranged from the Redfellows, blue-collar Becket believes he is the rightful heir to their obscenely massive fortune. Charmingly ruthless, he hatches a plan to eliminate all seven of his family members. Shot in Cape Town, with a stellar ensemble cast, the film promises wicked inventive fun and timely social satire in an age of class warfare and dynastic greed.

Set in 1980s and 90s Galashiels, this is the true life story of John Davidson diagnosed with Tourette syndrome (TS) at 15.

Targeted as 'insane' by his peers, Davidson struggled with a condition few had witnessed. TS can involve physical and vocal tics, intrusive thoughts, OCD and swearing, for which John was ridiculed and bullied at school and beaten up as an adult. Campaigning for better understanding and acceptance of the condition, he found his life's purpose and accepted his MBE from the Queen in 2019. This is a film that manages to be profoundly moving, address social issues and work as a feelgood comedy.

Colder than ice, her kiss pierces the heart... A richly textured and deeply moving tale of longing and solitude, this is a dark and mesmerising modern fairy tale.

The fourth feature by Lucile Hadžihalilović is set in the 1970s. Runaway Jeanne falls under the spell of Cristina (Academy Award winner Marion Cotillard), enigmatic star of The Snow Queen, a film of the Hans Christian Andersen story being shot in the studio where Jeanne has taken refuge. A mutual but potentially dangerous fascination begins to grow between the actress and the girl.

Rose Byrne (Bridesmaids) is magnificent in a white-knuckle comedy-drama about the hell of motherhood.

Linda's life is crashing down around her. Her husband away, she's left to navigate her child's mysterious illness and a perplexing hole in the bedroom ceiling alone. Relocated with her daughter to a cruddy beachside motel, she juggles her job as a therapist with her own psychological battleground of inadequacy, guilt and aggravation. Her long-suffering therapist is no help. Bronstein's increasingly surreal drama supplies a thrilling showcase for Byrne, astonishing as a woman on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

A documentary about the struggle by two friends to keep 2,000 horses - and an ancient tradition - alive during Mongolia's deadliest winter on record.

For countless generations, the herders of the Tsakhir Valley have protected their horses from ferocious arctic storms by amassing a giant winter herd, nominating their bravest young men to protect it. The daring tradition served as a brutal coming of age ritual, until five years ago, when under increasing environmental pressure, it abruptly ended. Fearful about the loss of culture, elders soon vowed to revive it. And two young herders were handed the daunting responsibility not only to protect the valley's herd — but to save its most sacred practice.

Will Arnett plays a rookie stand-up comic, freshly divorced, in this warm, bittersweet comedy.

As their marriage quietly unravels, Alex dips into the New York comedy scene while Tess confronts the sacrifices she made for their family. The split is largely amicable, but stresses and strains persist around co-parenting, identity shifts – and whether old love can take new form. Originating in the real-life experience of British comedian John Bishop and co-written by Arnett (Arrested Development) and Cooper (A Star is Born, Maestro), this is a real charmer of a picture, loose and funny, about the vicissitudes of middle age.

Köln 75 fictionalises the true story behind one of the best-selling jazz records of all time, Keith Jarrett's "Köln Concert" from 1975. The event almost failed to happen – before a formidable German teenager, 18-year-old Vera Brandes, who started her career as a concert promoter while still at school, pulls out all the stops. Vera believes in the power of music and has never seen anyone play in the way that Keith Jarrett does. Made without Jarrett's or the record company's cooperation, this is a film about Brandes, her youthful energy and rebellious spirit.

Hidden loot, a deadpan comic turn from Mads Mikkelsen, a creepy house in the woods and some oddball characters come together in this black Danish crime comedy.

Released from a 15-year jail sentence, bank robber Anker must unlock his traumatised brother's memory in order to recover the spoils from his big heist. The trouble is that Manfred (Mikkelsen with a very bad perm) is suffering from dissociative identity disorder and now thinks he is John Lennon. Known for his blackly comic, absurdly violent tales, director Jensen incorporates flashbacks to the brothers' difficult childhood, and, throwing in new ingredients at every turn, maintains a fast, furious, often funny pace throughout.

Visconti's fabulous epic is set in 1860s Sicily where the Prince of Salina tries to preserve his family's standing amid tumultuous social upheavals.

Burt Lancaster plays Principe Don Fabrizio Salina who understands that, with troops fighting for the unification of Italy, an age-old way of life is about to disappear. Proud but pragmatic, he consents to the marriage of his radical nephew Tancredi with Angelica (Claudia Cardinale), the beautiful daughter of a rich bourgeois. Based on the novel by Lampedusa, Visconti's realisation has everything: an impeccable cast, stunning cinematography, monumental battle scenes, sumptuous costumes, a breathtaking 45-minute ballroom sequence and a rousing score by Nino Rota. In late 1960s Japan, Belgian toddler Amélie finds the world a perplexing mystery until a rapturous encounter with chocolate ignites her wild sense of curiosity about, well, everything. Exploring the wonders of nature, Amélie develops a deep bond with the housekeeper, Nishio-san, and begins to understand the painful history beneath the surface of her family's idyllic existence as foreigners in post-war Japan. Adapted from the autobiographical novel by Amélie Nothomb, this is a wondrous story about the healing power of connection.

Vicky Krieps gives a magnetic performance as a woman paying a high price to be free in this radical commentary on motherhood, desire and self-discovery.

Clémence gave up her job as a lawyer and her marriage to write, and to date women. Her amicable relationship with ex-husband Laurent swivels when she lets slip her sexual preferences. When he wreaks revenge by claiming sole custody of their son, Clémence refuses to compromise. Her life is torn in two: between her personal and professional life and the bitter legal wrangling to reinstate her maternal rights. Krieps' shifts in body language express all this. Adapted from Constance Debré's semi-autobiographical bestseller, this reveals much about the violence of moral order towards women.

A tonal switch from historical drama Godland, Icelandic director Pálmason offers a tender and inventive account of the end of a marriage.

With a backdrop of spectacular Icelandic landscapes, strikingly shot on 35mm in Academy ratio, the film introduces us to artist Anna and fisherman Magnus, their three children (played by Pálmason's real life kids) and a scene-stealing family dog. Anna is certain about her break-up with Magnus; he is less so. Returning home when he's not at sea, his influence in the family is on the wane. Over a year, in a series of droll, thoughtful, occasionally surreal vignettes, Pálmason delivers an airy but aching study of marriage, family life and the loss of separation.

Celebrated filmmaker Kelly Reichardt (First Cow, Showing Up) directs an unforgettable Josh O'Connor in a film rich with textured detail.

In a sedate Massachusetts suburb circa 1970, unemployed family man and amateur art thief J.B. Mooney sets out on his first heist. With the museum cased and accomplices recruited, he has an airtight plan. Or so he thinks. A brilliant, often absurdly funny look at the folly of man, this sly depiction of an era subverts long-held fantasies – and the conventions of the fast-paced thriller genre – to confront disillusionment.

British Nigerian Akinola Davies Jr's bold and poetic debut is a semi-autobiographical tale set over the course of a single day in Lagos as political unrest looms.

Nigeria, 1993: Kid brothers Remi and Akin are gifted a day with their estranged father Folarin. Together, they voyage into Lagos for the first time, the boys taking in both the colossal city and the obstacles to getting there. Folarin's mission is threatened by the unfolding presidential election – the first since the military takeover 10 years previously – and the chaos he fears will follow. It is a vivid and intensely personal drama, a child's eye view of a mysterious father and a country on the edge of political turmoil.

Richard Linklater reimagines the making of Jean-Luc Godard's À bout de souffle in a playful, poignant love letter to cinema.

At the dawn of his career, Godard directs Jean Seberg and Jean-Paul Belmondo as star-crossed lovers, filming with unorthodox spontaneity on the streets of Paris. Working alongside other key players, friends and creative collaborators like Francois Truffaut— who's shooting Les quatre cents coups — Claude Chabrol, Roberto Rossellini, Jean-Pierre Melville and Jacques Rivette, the pressure to produce a masterpiece is impossible to escape. Beautifully shot in monochrome, this is a homage not just to one single film, but to a transformative period of youthful rebellion and creative tumult that shaped the French New Wave.

Washed-up revolutionary Bob (DiCaprio) exists in a state of stoned paranoia, surviving off grid with his spirited, self-reliant daughter, Willa (Infiniti). When his evil nemesis (Penn) resurfaces after 16 years and she goes missing, the former radical scrambles to find her, father and daughter both battling the consequences of his past. This thoughtful documentary examines issues around public access to land in England.

92% of the English countryside is without legal public access. Through organized "mass trespass" events, Right to Roam seeks to extend this, but often clashes with landowners. This documentary gives voice to both sides: prominent land authors, Nick Hayes and Guy Shrubsole, as well as landowners defending their custodianship. It examines complex issues of access, conservation, and longstanding property rights that have shaped the English landscape for over a thousand years. Ultimately, it asks the provocative question: who truly has the right to roam?

Annemarie Jacir (Wajib) tackles a pivotal period in Palestinian history that resounds with the violent events of recent years.

1936. Villages across Mandatory Palestine rise against British colonial rule. Ambitiously, Jacir uses period drama rather than documentary to convey the social and political complexities of the situation, drawing on an extended cast to weave diverse narrative threads. At the centre is Yusuf, who drifts between his rural home and the restless energy of Jerusalem, longing for a future beyond the growing unrest. With rising numbers of Jewish immigrants escaping antisemitism in Europe, and the Palestinian population uniting in the largest and longest uprising against Britain's 30-year dominion, all sides spiral towards inevitable collision.

Ben Whishaw and Rebecca Hall star in Ira Sachs' richly cinematic rendering of a real conversation between iconic photographer Peter Hujar and writer and artist Linda Rosenkrantz.

In 1974, photographer Peter Hujar describes the routines and rituals that define an artist's life with wit and spontaneity, capturing a single day's activities from interactions with cultural icons of the day, including Allen Ginsberg, William S. Burroughs and Susan Sontag and the texture and energy of downtown New York in its heyday. Elegant and intimate, this is both a masterful portrait of a time and place, and a captivating film about the way art emerges from the intimate details of everyday life.

This outstanding debut is a detailed portrait of life under dictatorship, seen through the travails of a nine-year-old girl.

Iraq, 1991: Lamia lives in poverty on the Mesopotamian Marshes with her ailing grandmother, Bibi. When she is chosen to supply the cake for her school's mandatory celebration of Saddam Hussein's birthday, it's a nightmare. Bibi and Lamia can't afford the ingredients, and non-compliance could mean punishment or even execution. Enlisting schoolmate Saaed to help, Lamia struggles to find what she needs, as the adults she encounters cheat, rob and betray her. Hadi's compassionate, tragicomic film balances light and dark in its child's eye view of the moral collapse resulting from scarcity and authoritarianism.

Deeply troubled by the suicide of one of her patients, renowned psychiatrist Lilian Steiner is drawn into a murder investigation.

Lilian's suspicions are raised by her own complex emotions, and hypnosis uncovers significant connections with her client's past. When she finds that files have been stolen, Lilian takes matters into her own hands and, with help from her ex-husband, turns amateur sleuth. Rebecca Zlotowski tackles the whodunnit with genuine thrills and a joyful dose of dark humour. And American actor Jodie Foster reveals her perfect command of French.

In Malaysia, where LGBT identities face legal challenges, a trans man named Faris and his punk band defy norms and build camaraderie.

Choosing the name “Shh...Diam!”, meaning “shut up!” in Malay, this LGBT punk band persists in shouting out its truth in a country that denies queer rights. We’re invited into the lives of band members Faris, Yon and Yoyo, as their momentum as a group grows within the suffocating environment of Malaysia’s state-endorsed monopolies on religion, desire and identity. Their candid conversations explore themes of self-expression, bodily transformation, love, parental expectations, anxiety and political participation. Through hardships, the band perseveres with infectious energy, using rebellious punk music and gigs to vent, flirt and share laughs.

Josh O'Connor delivers a restrained but astoundingly expressive performance as cowboy Dusty whose Colorado ranch has been devastated by wildfires.

Thomas, ‘Dusty’, is shattered when his farmland is completely destroyed by fire. With nothing to call his own, he winds up in a Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) camp, living in a trailer alongside others who have lost their homes. Adversity offers opportunities; Dusty manages to find community with his neighbours while reconnecting with his nine-year old daughter and ex-wife Ruby. Quiet and meditative for a neo-Western, this is a moving portrait of resilience and human connection in the aftermath of loss, against the backdrop of the magnificent Colorado landscape.

Denis Lavant (Holy Motors, Beau Travail) gives an intensely physical performance in this tender allegory of survival.

Set in a rural Swedish village at the height of the Cold War and based on real events, Redoubt is punctuated with quotes from If War Comes – a civil defence manual issued to Swedish households during the era when fear of nuclear war with Soviet Russia was a daily concern. Through the seasons, eccentric farm worker Karl-Göran Persson fortifies his modest home into a haven against nuclear Armageddon. Compulsively gathering scrap metal, he casts it into the walls, envisioning a fortress that will protect him and his neighbours, but his efforts bewilder everyone except the local children.

Brendan Foster gives a sympathetic portrayal of a struggling American actor searching for a connection in Tokyo.

Phillip Vanderpleog lives in the Japanese capital. Running out of work options, he is employed by a 'rental family' company, which provides clients with actors who stand in for absent loved ones. Sceptical at first, Phillip discovers in these roles, opportunities and relationships previously missing from his life. However, the line between performance and reality becomes increasingly blurred, as Phillip immerses himself a little too much in the roles he is hired to play. Full of visual comedy, this is a heart-warming film that embodies the human need to make attachments.

Virtuoso Chinese director Bi Gan (Long Day's Journey Into Night) returns with a film that heralds the death of cinema while magnificently celebrating it.

Spanning a century, Resurrection divides into six chapters, each taking place in a specific cinematic era and genre, from actualities, through expressionism and noir to the vampire film. In the future, humans have attained immortality – as long as they don't dream. The dissident or Deliriant (Jackson Yee) shape-shifts as he time-travels through an odyssey that keeps pace with Chinese history. Unlike anything else, this striking ode to the power of cinema has sequences that are absolutely breathtaking. It cries out for the big screen; sit back and dare to dream deliriously.

Fresh out of prison, senior gangster Tony le Stéphanois agrees to carry out a daring jewellery heist in the centre of Paris with three associates.

Absolutely riveting from the start, Rififi is based on the premise that four men plan a robbery, prepare for it meticulously, carry it out – and face the fallout. At the film's core is the legendary 30-minute heist sequence, beautifully choreographed, unbelievably tense, with no dialogue or music. The key characters are wonderfully etched: bitter, cynical and somewhat sadistic Tony; stolid, family man sidekick Jo; sunny, hedonistic Mario; dapper Milanese safe breaker César (played by Dassin himself under the name Perlo Vita). This film noir is pure gold.

Mark Jenkin's time-travelling odyssey is a mysterious and unconventional story of identity, grief and the vagaries of time, but also very much about Cornwall and the sea.

30 years ago, the Rose of Nevada was lost at sea with all hands. When it suddenly reappears in the harbour of a rundown Cornish fishing village, it feels like a sign: if the Rose sets sail again, perhaps the village's luck will turn. Nick (George MacKay) takes a job aboard, joined by newly arrived drifter Liam (Callum Turner) but when they return to land, all is not as they left it. Shot on 16mm like Bait, this time in bold colour, the film delights in its distinctive texture and physicality.

Master filmmaker Kleber Mendonça Filho (Aquarius, Bacurau) delivers a rich, novelistic political thriller.

1977 Brazil: Amid the revelry of Carnival, widower Marcelo arrives in vibrant, violent Recife. A technology researcher who suddenly finds himself an unwitting target in the heart of the dictatorship's political maelstrom, Marcelo is on the run from mercenary killers and the ghosts of the past. Amid mounting threats, Marcelo, aided by compatriots in the country's growing underground resistance, remains focused on escaping Brazil with his young son. Steeped in history, The Secret Agent also feels remarkably contemporary, depicting a world of everyday corruption, threat and political turmoil that speaks to the present moment.

This documentary feature debut, filmed over seven years, vividly captures a community of Black farming families in the American South.

In a narrative that begins and ends with a funeral, Shyne sits with the everyday lives of this southern community, where the importance of intergenerational ties – with great-grandchildren living on the same land – is paramount. For these farmers, campaigning against systemic racial discrimination is as much a part of their livelihood as growing food; government subsidies automatically favour white agriculture. A deeply resonant and immersive film, shot by director-cinematographer Shyne in stunning black and white.

High in the French Pyrenees, the reintroduction of brown bears provokes conflict with the shepherding community.

Ageing shepherd Yves struggles to find a successor as bears prey on his flock in their remote summer pasturelands; Lisa, a young shepherdess, discovers her chosen livelihood is too fraught to sustain; Cyril, a teenage boy is obsessed with tracking and photographing the bears. Two years in preparation, this character-driven documentary eschews an activist approach. Instead, through breathtaking cinematography and immersive storytelling, it conveys the complexities of a situation where state legislation and ecological concerns clash with local customs. It's a modern folktale about tradition, community and humanity's relationship with a vanishing natural world.

On the river Elbe between Berlin and Hamburg, a family farm sits in a region affected by both world wars and Cold War divisions between East and West Germany. We home in on Alma in the early 20th century, Erika in the 1940s, Angelika in the 1980s, and Lenka in the present. As time moves both forwards and backwards, each faces her own fate. It's a sombre, beautifully crafted study of Germany's national trauma, the effects of violent patriarchy and the haunting emotional inheritance of successive conflicts for young women and girls.

Prolific writer-director François Ozon (When Autumn Falls, The Crime is Mine) adapts Albert Camus' classic existentialist novel.

Algiers, 1938. An unassuming man in his early thirties, Meursault attends his mother's funeral, at which he does not cry. The next day, he begins a casual affair with Marie and slips back into his daily routine. Then, one blisteringly hot afternoon, an inexplicable, tragic event occurs on a beach; one that will see Meursault's moral standing brought into question. Voisin is terrific as the unnervingly disaffected Meursault. Shot in cool black-and-white, the film brings a contemporary slant to Camus' tale of alienation, capturing a charged society – 1930s French-colonised Algeria – on the boil.

A bold musical tells true story of Ann Lee (“the female Christ”), founder of the Shaker movement.

Directed by Mona Fastvold (co-writer of The Brutalist) and shot on 70mm, the film follows Ann Lee from poverty-stricken childhood in 18th century Manchester to her defiant espousal of celibacy and piety. Joining a religious group known as the Shakers who express themselves through song and dance, “Mother Ann” leads them to the US to build a utopian community. Amanda Seyfried anchors the ensemble cast, bringing Ann, an advocate for equality and human rights in advance of her time, vividly to life.

Promising musician Niki White (Leo Woodall) has hyperacusis, a condition that turns any mildly loud sound into one that's quite deafening. Wearing heavy duty headphones to muffle excess noise, he has harnessed his acute hearing into a profession that affords some satisfaction: piano tuning. With his smooth-talking mentor Harry Horowitz (Dustin Hoffman), he visits the homes of wealthy clients for whom a piano is just an accessory. When Niki discovers his sensitivity to sound also gives him an aptitude for safe-cracking, he embarks on a thrilling and heightened spiral of crime.

ZOOTROPOLIS 2 (PG)

DIRECTORS: Jared Bush, Byron Howard

WITH THE VOICES OF: Ginnifer Goodwin, Jason Bateman, Ke Huy Quan
US, 2024, 1 HOUR 48 MINUTES, ENGLISH

RS

Saturday 21 March 2.00pm
Kington, The Old Picture House* (relaxed)

Rookie cops Judy Hopps and Nick Wilde must go undercover to crack a mystifying new case in Zootropolis.

When Gary De'Snake arrives in town and turns the animal metropolis upside down, Judy and Nick's rabbit and fox partnership is tested like never before as they follow the trail of the mystery to unexpected new parts of town to restore trust and order. The film features 178 unique characters representing 67 different animal species, painstakingly crafted hair by hair.

"...fear not - the jokes are funny, the characters engaging, and the animation packed with delicious visual detail."

Mark Kermode, The Observer

AUDIENCE AWARD/VOTING

At The Courtyard Hereford, Malvern Theatres, Ludlow Assembly Rooms you are encouraged to rate the films you see by placing your ticket stub or a voting card into one of five starred boxes. Results will be collated and posted on-site but not shared online. For the first time, your votes will count towards a Borderlines Audience Award; selected films will be eligible.

A-LISTERS - CINEMA TRAILERS

Watch out for the playful A-Listers shorts reminding audience members how to behave at the cinema. The A-listers is a fun-fuelled filmmaking club for neurodiverse young people and young people with learning disabilities, supported by Depot cinema in Lewes. 'A' stands for Autism, Aspergers, A-typical, ADHD and Amazing.
